FAQs about eBooks

Why can't I get the new bestsellers in eBook format?

If there's a title you were hoping for, please contact your home library and make your suggestion through their website link. You may be interested to know that many new blockbuster titles are only offered to libraries in audio format when they are first released and some are not offered at all.

Why are there so many holds on one copy of a title (like some titles by Lee Child)?

We routinely add copies as holds lists grow. In some cases, however, the rights for libraries to purchase e-content is withdrawn. This means more copies cannot be purchased to meet the customer demand. As well, buying multiple eBook licenses to fill holds reduces the budget available for purchasing new and diverse content.

What do I do at the end of the loan period?

At the end of the loan period the license will expire and, although the eBook will still physically be on your computer and/or device, you will no longer be able to turn pages or otherwise access the book. At that time you can delete the eBook. There are never any overdue fines.

How do I return an eBook early?

If you finish with an eBook prior to the end of the loan period you can return it early. Returning an eBook once you are finished with it and before the loan period expires is a courtesy to other people who may want to borrow the book and also frees up space for you to borrow other titles.

On your computer go to Adobe Digital Editions → Bookshelves: All Items → Right click on the book cover you wish to return. A menu will pop up with several options. Choose Return Borrowed Item. Alternatively, on your mobile device go to Bookshelf. Click and hold on the book cover you wish to return. A menu will pop up asking if you wish to Delete Return Share. Select Return.

How do I retrieve an item I placed on Hold that is now available for me?

When placing a hold on an item you can set it to be automatically borrowed for you when it becomes available. If you choose this option you will receive an email notification when the title becomes available/has been borrowed for you. You can then go to Account → Bookshelf in order to download and read the title. Otherwise, to access the item on hold you would sign into your account → Holds and check out the item.

If my library doesn't have a particular eBook available can I borrow the eBook from another library?

Download Library is a consortium of libraries for Kitchener, Waterloo, Cambridge, Region of Waterloo and Perth County Information Network established to provide digital content to all library card holders from the participating libraries.

How often is new content added to the Download Library site?

All libraries within the consortium purchase content for the Download Library site. New content is added regularly.

Do you have more than one copy of a title?

Yes! For many of the eBook titles we have multiple licenses allowing for multiple borrowers.

What do I need in order to check out and download eBooks?

You need to have a valid library card from one of the libraries in the consortium in order to be able to check out and download eBooks. You also need to have a computer with internet access and/or an eReader device.

How do I know what software to download and how to get set up?

There are two main sources of information:

1. From the <http://www.downloadlibrary.ca> website go to Help → My Help → follow the prompts
2. From the <http://www.wpl.ca> website go to DIY → select the link for instructions for your device

How many eBooks can I sign out?

You can have up to fifteen (15) digital items signed out on your library card at one time.

How long can I check an eBook out for?

eBooks can be borrowed for 7, 14, or 21 days – you can select the loan period that works best for you.

Why don't you have all the books in a series?

Please contact your home library to make us aware of any gaps in a series that you find so that we can check for the missing titles. Sadly, sometimes we can only buy part of a series because the rest are not yet available in digital editions.

Why are some titles available to consumers but not on downloadLibrary?

Some publishers are choosing not to sell digital content to libraries. The library community is working with publishers to address these concerns.

Can I request digital titles?

Yes! You are encouraged to contact your home library and make your suggestion through their website link for purchase suggestions.

Can I renew a loan if I am not finished with the book at the end of the loan period?

The option to renew becomes available three days before a title is set to expire and appears next to the title on your Bookshelf under your library Account. If the title already has holds you can't renew it, but you can request it again.

Can I place items on hold that are not currently available?

You can place a Hold on up to fifteen (15) downloadable items at one time.

What is Overdrive Read and Overdrive Listen?

Overdrive Read and Overdrive Listen provides instant access to a book in your web browser without downloading the book, installing software or activating your device. All you need is a computer or device with a modern web browser. If the title is available to borrow, you can download the title – as you've always been able to – or you can choose to start reading (or listening) right away in your web browser. If you choose browser-based reading/listening, your progress will sync across devices. You will be able to access the same book on different devices. For example, you can continue reading/listening to a book on your iPad where you left off on your laptop. You can read both online and offline. When online make sure to save the Overdrive Read/Listen title you are enjoying as a favorite in your browser or on your home screen so that you can read/listen when you are offline.
