Fiction

Two fantastic characters - an impossible to catch thief, trying to steal a treasure he admits is 'stupid' to try to steal, and an art forger with a questionable moral code - check all of the boxes for an incredible read. Together the two hatch a plan to steal the Daryayeh-E-Noor (Ocean of Light) diamond using perfect copies of priceless works of art, parkour, multiple murders, and incredibly complicated disguises. Riley Wolfe is a master criminal who seizes your attention in the first chapter by stealing a 12 ½ ton sculpture in front of a large Chicago crowd. The novel is gritty, funny, and thrilling especially when Frank Delgado, a veteran F.B.I agent, with a near-perfect reputation and a personal grudge against Wolfe enters the scene. A heist novel that reads like a blockbuster film - there is so much to love!

Non-Fiction

We all have foods that cause us to have an emotional reaction. Whether it's a meal that comforts us when we are sick, or an aroma that takes us back to a specific time and place, food has power. But we're not all capable of describing why or what specifically causes our emotional reaction. 'Eat Joy' is full of food writers talking about the foods and meals that have sparked emotional responses within them. They reflect on the foods that bring them joy and foods that sooth them, as well as the foods that allow them to bring out the same emotions in others. Delve in for luxurious food descriptions and an intimate glimpse of foods that have profoundly impacted someone's life by people whose writing is emotional, relatable and most importantly will leave your mouth watering.
